

WORK-IN-PROGRESS (MARCH 9, 2019) PARALLEL CHART FOR

Preface

from Long Heads and Round Heads: Or, What's the Matter with Germany (1918)

by William S. Sadler, M.D.

© 2016, 2019 Matthew Block

Key

- (a) Green indicates where a source first appears, or where it reappears.
- (b) Yellow highlights most parallelisms.
- (c) Tan highlights parallelisms not occurring on the same row, or parallelisms separated by yellowed parallelisms.
- (d) An underlined word or words indicates where the source and Sadler pointedly differ from one another.
- (e) Pink indicates passages where Sadler specifically shares his own experiences, opinions, advice, etc.
- (f) Red indicates an obvious mistake, in most cases brought about by Sadler's miscopying or misunderstanding his source, or an otherwise questionable statement.

Matthew Block
9 March 2019

SOURCE

Work-in-progress Version 1 May 2016
© 2016, 2019 Matthew Block
Revised 9 March 2019

P: LONG HEADS AND ROUND HEADS

PREFACE

0:0.1 While my purpose and motives in writing and compiling this little volume are quite clearly and completely expressed in the text, I wish here to emphasize that while I am desirous of doing my full duty as an American citizen in this trying time of our national existence, I bear no ill feeling and entertain no prejudices against either the German people or any system of teaching or culture—just because it is German.

0:0.2 I have endeavored, in bringing the matter in this little work together, to be broad-minded, and I have no motive in my heart other than to be fair and just. In my study of the spectacle of a highly civilized nation suddenly becoming war-mad and unbelievably atrocious, I discovered what appeared to me to be the explanation or explanations of this unusual phenomenon; and I have, in this little work, tried to tell the story just as it has unfolded itself to my mind.

0:0.3 In connection with numerous public addresses, I have found that this presentation of the subject seemed to be a great help to hundreds and thousands of my fellow-citizens, and I came to the conclusion that it was my duty to prepare the address for publication. In doing so, I have no other thought than that it shall help my fellow-Americans better to understand the present conflict and, therefore, better to do their duty as American citizens in this trying hour.

[?]

SOURCE

P: LONG HEADS AND ROUND HEADS

I hope the American people can fight this war from principle, with patriotic determination, and without engendering that lamentable race hatred and love of bloodshed and rejoicing in the suffering of one's enemies which so unfortunately characterizes our strong and wicked foe. If my efforts can contribute something to these objects, I shall be gladdened and gratified.

[4]

0:0.4 In preparing this little volume I have consulted many writings and authorities, too numerous to cite either here or in the text, but I am especially indebted to such works as Men of the Old Stone Age, by Henry Fairfield Osborn; The Passing of the Great Race, by Madison Grant; Gems of German Thought, by William Archer; Out of Their Own Mouths, by William Roscoe Thayer¹; not to mention numerous magazine articles, newspapers, and the current literature of the day. While credit is given in the text for direct quotations, I felt this special acknowledgment was due to the above-mentioned authorities for the great help they have afforded me in formulating the ideas of this work and in reaching the conclusions herein expressed.

0:0.5 My sincere desire—my most earnest hope—is that a perusal of this volume will promote intelligent patriotism, and, after all, it is the element of intelligent understanding that makes patriotism the more determined, persistent, and all-consuming.

SOURCE

P: LONG HEADS AND ROUND HEADS

I am particularly anxious that those who may chance to read this little book will do all in their power to put it in the hands of our boys at the front, that they may better know why America is in the war and why they have been called upon to risk their lives in defense of American homes and democratic institutions.

Jan. 1, 1918.

WILLIAM S. SADLER, M.D.
32 N. State Street, Chicago

1. William Roscoe Thayer wrote the Introduction to the book; the editor and compiler was Munroe Smith, LL.D.